

DREAMACHINE FLOOR LAMPS

LI-4846

Reminiscent of the 1960s Dreamachine—a device with a stroboscopic flicker to produce visual stimuli, made by artist Brion Gysin, author William S. Burroughs, and mathematician Ian Sommerville—this pair of 6 FT. tall floor lamps are formed from early 20TH century factory tumblers atop vintage steel machine bases with a distinctive studded pattern. Each lamp features a foot switch and 40W Edison-style tube bulbs. As you walk by the lamps give a gentle strobe effect created by to the pattern in the steel shades. Built and designed by Get Back Inc founder Tim Byrne.
